W11. Barring unforeseen events, next year Nicola Sturgeon will overtake Alex Salmond as Scotland's longest-serving First Minister. She took office in November 2014, in a Scotland which was evenly split on the constitution. (Average support for independence in polling was at 50%, compared to the current 48%.) W13. If a man is found innocent of rape or other sexual assault, it is currently an imprisonable offence to publicly identify the person or people who falsely accused him, either by directly naming them or by giving clues which might enable people to deduce who they were.
